Master’s Thesis Workshops and Writing Groups
During winter and spring quarters, the Graduate Writing Center offers workshops and facilitated writing groups for students writing master’s theses. The master’s thesis workshops cover specific issues related to the scope, components, expectations, and time constraints of writing a master’s thesis. Writing groups are facilitated by a trained GWC writing consultant who provides tips on general writing and revision strategies as well as specific aspects of a thesis. Most of the writing groups’ time consists of peer review and interactive writing activities using sections of the thesis draft. Participants must commit to writing a minimum of three new pages per week (typed, double-spaced) and to participate every week. Please see our website for more information:
